(Conway, SC) — Glendinning Marine Products, Inc., a product development company that designs, assembles, and markets electro-mechanical devices for use in the RV and marine industries — has announced the completion of their acquisition of the assets of NW Controls, Inc (Harleysville, PA). NW Controls has been a leader in the control cable industry since its inception in 1945.

In addition to being "a step above" in the areas of quality and service, NW Controls has utilized advance technology in the manufacture of "armored core" which is the unique component in their lowest-friction controls.

Tough, flexible, and high performance are qualities that will continue to describe NW Controls by Glendinning. "This acquisition is a great opportunity for Glendinning to continue to provide quality products to the marine industry," said Vice-President John Glendinning. "We have used NW Controls for the past 25 years and always felt that their cables were the best in the business."
